Wisconsin DHS Urges Back-to-School Vaccinations Amid Measles Outbreak

MADISON, Wis. — As students return to classrooms across Wisconsin, state health officials are urging families to check their children's vaccination records and make sure they are up to date, particularly as Wisconsin continues to deal with a measles outbreak.

The Wisconsin Department of Health Services says back-to-school vaccinations are an important way to protect children from serious vaccine-preventable illnesses and help keep students healthy and in school.

“Back-to-school vaccinations are always important, and especially now with a measles outbreak in our state,” State Health Officer Paula Tran said. “Now is the best time for families to make sure their children have the protection they need to support their own health, and the health of their classrooms.”

DHS recommends that parents and caregivers review their children's vaccination records and contact a health care provider if they have questions or discover that vaccinations are due.

Families can also check immunization records through the Wisconsin Immunization Registry, which provides access to vaccination information for both children and adults.

Health officials say checking records early gives families time to speak with a health care provider, ask questions and schedule any needed vaccinations.

The reminder comes as the 2026-27 school year gets underway and Wisconsin health officials continue responding to measles cases in the state.

More information about immunizations and the Wisconsin Immunization Registry is available through the Wisconsin Department of Health Services.

Marshfield Area Girl Scouts Invite Families to “Fur-ever Friends” Event

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — With the new school year underway, area families are invited to learn more about Girl Scouts during a free event in Marshfield next week.

Girl Scouts of the Northwestern Great Lakes will host a “Fur-ever Friends” Girl Scout event on Thursday, September 10, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Everett Roehl Marshfield Public Library in the J.P. Adler Room.

The event is open to girls in 4K through fifth grade and their families who are interested in discovering what Girl Scouts has to offer.

Participants will have an opportunity to take part in pet-themed activities, meet other girls and families interested in scouting, and learn about the different ways Girl Scouts can help young people develop new skills, build confidence, lead, create and connect with their community.

Organizers say the event is designed to give families a fun and informal introduction to Girl Scouts while helping girls find their local scouting community.

The “Fur-ever Friends” event is free to attend, and no RSVP is required. Families can simply stop by the library between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. on September 10.

Marshfield Breaks Ground on New Police Department Facility

By David Murchland - Marshfield Now!

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — City officials, law enforcement leaders and community members gathered Wednesday to celebrate the groundbreaking of Marshfield's new police department facility, marking the beginning of a project officials say has been years in the making.

Denise Sonneman with the Marshfield Area Chamber of Commerce opened the ceremony, noting that discussions about the need for a new police facility stretch back several years. She said the existing department has become increasingly cramped as staffing and the needs of modern law enforcement have grown.

Mayor Nick Poeschel said the need for additional space at the police department is not new. Poeschel, who began working at the department in 1989, recalled that even then the building was considered too small for the department's needs.

"We were already talking that it was too small," Poeschel said. He said the new facility will give the department an opportunity to significantly expand its footprint and better serve the community.

funding. He said the Marshfield project successfully secured funding after being evaluated on factors including public purpose, need, impact, viability, organizational capacity and local support.

Representing the Police and Fire Commission, Bill Pinker said the new facility will provide Marshfield's sworn officers, credentialed staff and civilian employees with a workplace designed for 21st-century law enforcement.

Pinker said the project also continues a long history in Marshfield of repurposing existing buildings for new uses rather than simply abandoning community resources.

"The city has not destroyed resources.

"Over more than 40 years, we have simply outgrown our current facility," Geurink said.

The new facility is intended to address those existing problems while providing enough flexibility for the police department to grow and adapt in the decades ahead.

Geurink credited numerous city employees, elected officials, police department personnel, consultants and project partners with bringing the project to the construction stage. He said the department expects to transition from its current building into the new facility within approximately the next year.

For Geurink, who has spent more than 28 years working in the existing station, the eventual move will also be bittersweet.

He reflected on the memories created in the current building through decades of calls, difficult days, successful days and generations of employees who have served the community there.

While the existing station has served Marshfield for more than 40 years, Geurink said Wednesday's groundbreaking represents the beginning of the department's next chapter.

"The building we're breaking ground on today isn't just bricks, concrete, offices, and equipment," Geurink said. "It represents an investment in the future of the Marshfield Police Department, and more importantly, an investment in the people we serve."

The department expects employees to begin moving into the new facility in approximately a year. Geurink said he hopes the building will serve generations of Marshfield police employees and the community for decades to come.

State Senator Cory Tomczyk highlighted the state funding secured for the project, saying $800,000 in state dollars will help support the new facility. He described strong public safety infrastructure as an investment not only in Marshfield residents but also in those who come to the community to work, study, shop and visit.

State Representative John Spiros explained that the funding came through a competitive state infrastructure grant program. According to Spiros, 256 applications representing $2.1 billion in total project costs competed for available

It has preserved them and made them better," Pinker said, adding that the project will create a police headquarters designed "not for the past, but for the future."

Police Chief Jody Geurink said the groundbreaking represents the culmination of efforts dating back to at least 2013.

The department's current police station was constructed in 1982. While considered modern at the time, Geurink said more than four decades of changes in law enforcement have left the department facing challenges involving storage, safety, security and efficiency.

Marshfield VFW Invites Students to Enter Voice of Democracy, Patriot's Pen Competitions

By David Murchland - Marshfield Now!

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — Marshfield-area middle and high school students are invited to share their perspectives on America while competing for scholarships and awards through the Veterans of Foreign Wars' 2026-27 youth competitions.

The VFW's Voice of Democracy and Patriot's Pen competitions share this year's theme: "What a Veteran Taught Me About America."

The Voice of Democracy competition is open to students in grades 9 through 12. Students must write and record an original three- to five-minute audio essay based on the annual theme. The national first-place winner will receive a $35,000 scholarship.

Voice of Democracy has been a VFW scholarship program since 1947. Nearly 26,000 high school students participate annually, competing for more than $2 million in scholarships and incentives. Awards can be presented at the Post, District, state and national levels.

The Patriot's Pen competition is open to students in grades 6 through 8. Participants must write an original essay between 300 and 400 words on the same theme. The national first-place winner will receive a $5,000 award.

More than 60,000 students participated in Patriot's Pen last year. Students begin at the local VFW Post level, with winners advancing through District and state competition before reaching the national level.

Entries for both competitions must be submitted to a participating VFW Post by midnight on October 31, 2026.

Marshfield Police Issue Sex Offender Release Notification

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — The Marshfield Police Department has issued a community notification regarding the upcoming release of a registered sex offender who is expected to reside in Marshfield.

According to the department, Jacob A. Stanley, 31, is scheduled to be released on September 8, 2026, and will reside at 201 W. Depot St. in Marshfield.

Police say Stanley was convicted in 2014 of one count of second-degree sexual assault of a child and one count of causing a child to view or listen to sexual activity. He was also convicted in 2013 of one count of fourth-degree sexual assault and one count of contributing to truancy.

Following his release, Stanley will be under the supervision of the Wisconsin Department of Corrections Division of Community Corrections in Marshfield. According to the notification, he will be monitored by sex offender agent specialists and will be subject to lifetime GPS monitoring.

The department says Stanley's conditions include no unsupervised contact with minors, no contact with the victim, no consumption of drugs, compliance with standard sex offender rules, cooperation with electronic monitoring and compliance with the requirements of the Wisconsin Sex Offender Registry. He is required to register for life.

The Marshfield Police Department emphasized that the notification is being provided for public safety and awareness. Police also cautioned that the information may not be used to threaten, intimidate or harass registered sex offenders.

The department said the notification is being released pursuant to Wisconsin State Statute 301.46(2m), which allows law enforcement agencies to notify the public of a sex offender's release or residence when the agency determines that releasing the information will enhance public safety, protection and awareness.

Questions about the notification may be directed to the Wisconsin Department of Corrections Sex Offender Registry at 608-240-5830 or the Marshfield Police Department at 715-384-3113.
